

PUNCTUATING DIALOGUE

When characters speak to each other it is called dialogue. Quotation marks are used to punctuate dialogue. Quotation marks show a speaker's exact words. A comma sets off what was said from who said it. A direct quote always starts with a capital letter.

Examples

Emily remarked, "I just finished my homework."
"What is your favorite book?" Maria asked.

Underline the exact words of the speaker and circle the quotation marks.

1. Nick yelled, "It's time for recess."
2. "Can I have some cake?" Joe asked.
3. "Ice cream is my favorite desert," said Alexa.

Add the missing quotation marks to each sentence.

4. Minna is my favorite dog, said Marley.
5. I'm as mad as a hornet's nest, Dad yelled.
6. The preacher said, Welcome to our Sunday morning service.
7. I love your new dress, Mother exclaimed.
8. Jason begged, Can I have another piece of cake?

Write two sentences with dialogue.

9.

10.

PUNCTUATING DIALOGUE ANSWER KEY

When characters speak to each other it is called dialogue. Quotation marks are used to punctuate dialogue. Quotation marks show a speaker's exact words. A comma sets off what was said from who said it. A direct quote always starts with a capital letter.

Examples

Emily remarked, "I just finished my homework."
"What is your favorite book?" Maria asked.

Underline the exact words of the speaker and circle the quotation marks.

1. Nick yelled, (") It's time for recess. (")
2. (") Can I have some cake? (") Joe asked.
3. (") Ice cream is my favorite desert, (") said Alexa.

Add the missing quotation marks to each sentence.

4. "Minna is my favorite dog," said Marley.
5. "I'm as mad as a hornet's nest," Dad yelled.
6. The preacher said, "Welcome to our Sunday morning service."
7. "I love your new dress," Mother exclaimed.
8. Jason begged, "Can I have another piece of cake?"

Write two sentences with dialogue. Answers will vary.

9.

10.